From JIM COOK in Adelaide

Hellas (S.A.) 2, Lions (Vic.) 2

On their two-match tour, Lions, of Melbourne, caused a big impression among Soccer fans in South Australia with their all-action style of play in the games against Hellas and Lions last week-end.

23 TRAIN AT BOWL

Wilhelmina have started their long range plan to build a powerful Soccer club for the future.

On Monday night 23 players registered with the Golden Bowl, Canberra, for physical training under the personal supervision of Brendan Edwards, the former Hawthorn Australian Rules player.

The Ringwood club's players will train twice a week at the Bowl during the "off season".

The Wilhelmina boarding school at Croydon will start next January.

NO SOCCER SATURDAY

There will be no Soccer at Olympic Park on Saturday.

The Federation executive decided on Monday night that the Armstrong Cup final between St. Albans and Wilhelmina would not be played.

On Sunday the Australia Cup game — Hellas v. Juventus (S.A.) — at Olympic Park will start at 3 p.m. Curtain-raiser will be the under 16 Cup final — Sunshine City v. Dandenong City — at 1.15 p.m.

The winner of Sunday's Australia Cup will play either APIA or South Coast

Morrie Buckner says

If a motorist drives through a red light and is later charged with the offence in court, he wouldn't get far with the magistrate by pleading that he is color-blind.

His licence to drive would most certainly be cancelled.

The Victorian Soccer Federation is like this hypothetical motorist — it fails to see the red lights.

When you ask the Soccer commissioners about the queer things that go on in the name of Soccer these days, they merely smile and make statements which, in effect, go like this: "Sorry, but we are color-blind".

I have two reasons for saying this. Both concern matters which cropped up in games last weekend. Although these things may have been legally and technically permissible, they are certainly wrong in principle.

And surely if something is wrong in principle, steps should be taken to make it impossible to be technically and legally permissible.

LET'S take Saturday's Harry Armstrong Reserve Cup semi-final first. In this game, St. Albans gave a spirited performance to beat Hakoah 2-1.

But St. Albans didn't field its Reserve team. It fielded its First team.

What made this legally possible is the rule which says that no player can appear in both the Dockerty Cup series and the Reserve Cup series. So St. Albans pulled the obvious switch.

Realising that it had little chance of winning the Dockerty Cup and badly wanting a trophy to add to its Second Division championship pennant, it fielded its Reserves for the BIG Cup and held its Seniors for the Reserve Cup.

If you were to ask "What's wrong with that?", the answer must be "Nothing — technically". But what would happen if 30 or 40 clubs fielded their Reserve teams in the Dockerty Cup series and saved their Seniors for the Reserve Cup?

Both competitions would develop into a mess — a mess even worse, if possible, than the confused muddle already made of the Dockerty Cup and the

THEY'RE ALL

COLOR-BLIND!

Australia Cup by the V.S.F. and the A.S.F. with their implementation of such stupid ideas as round-robin and home-and-away fixtures in competitions which were never intended to be anything else but KNOCKOUT competitions, and which become completely befouled by any other arrangement.

And if Soccer's commissioners create new and silly rules every year, rules that are dragging the sport of Soccer down into a bottomless quicksand, why blame St. Albans for pulling a smart switch?

But, dear commissioners, be warned! Don't be color-blind! Unless you close this loophole, both of Victoria's Cup competitions will be reduced to utter farces.

* * *

NOW let's move on to Sunday's Australia Cup match in which George Cross gave one of its best displays of 1965 to beat a determined bid by Juventus 3-1.

Everyone was surprised to see Cross left fullback Johnny McDaid take the field. Surprised, pleased, and puzzled. The last we heard, Johnny had been suspended for three matches.

Naturally some questions were in order and I asked some officials about it. They told me that Johnny's case had gone to the Appeals Board and the Board had reduced the suspension to one match. I pointed out that this was the first match that Johnny's team had played since his suspension.

The officials agreed that this was the first match played by Cross' SENIOR team, but they pointed out that Cross' RESERVE team had played its last two league games since Johnny's suspension. And, although Johnny has been identified with the senior team since his arrival here, according to the officials those two Reserve games took Johnny off the hook!

So I say it again. This may be technically right, but it's morally wrong.

But you can't expect more from people who are metaphorically color-blind to anything and everything that will hamper and hinder their own personal aims or those of their clubs.

* * *

THE weekend produced several sterling performances. One was the effort by Slavia's "crippled" side in fighting back from a 0-2 deficit to beat Hakoah 4-3 after extra time in 92-degree heat.

Another was the sparkling performance by George Cross against Juventus — a game in which both sides gave the spectators superior entertainment.

And finally, there was the clash of the Under-12s, the Frankston Pines and Sunshine City, who battled through time and extra time to a 2-2 draw.

It would be unfair to single out any one of these youngsters strictly on playing ability, but I shall take the liberty of mentioning one of them to illustrate the proposition that the future of Soccer in Australia lies with Australian kids, regardless of whether they are the sons of migrants or of purely Australian lineage.

At the end of this junior match, Wayne Kelly, Frankston Pines' left half, was carried off the field shoulder high as the star of his side.

The point is that Wayne is only nine years old and that before March this year he had never kicked a Soccer ball.

How Australian Soccer would flourish if thousands of kids like Wayne were scouted, encouraged, and the natural players amongst them coached by experts!

Within 10 years, Australia would produce an AUSTRALIAN World Cup team that would be just as respected abroad as this country's tennis players, swimmers, golfers, cyclists, athletes, and other sportsmen.

DON'T WRITE HELLAS OFF

● Cont. from page 1

Boulos Kamboropolous, a clever ball-playing inside-forward, is the right type of player between the striking trio with his deft touches and ability to crack open a defence.

Who will form the fifth member of the Hellas attack?

Unless of course, Mike Mandalis makes a comeback or if he isn't yet ready, could a place be found for the experienced Jimmy Adam?

I'm not going to underestimate Juventus (Adelaide) even without match-winner inside forward Steve Herczeg who also will be missing through World Cup duty with the Australian squad.

● SUPER SIDE

But although I gave them full credit for their clear-cut and shock win over Slavia they had the breaks and don't let's fool ourselves they are a super side.

Good maybe with a balanced defensive unit and an enterprising forward formation cup ties have a habit of bringing out the best in even mediocre sides.

Now my thoughts on the game and how it will go:

Hellas should match at least the South Australian side in every phase of the game — ability and skill, pace, teamwork and courage. And the Melbourne side are exponents in attacking from the kick-off — something which Juventus failed to do against Slavia.

I feel Hellas have more drive in midfield than if their motor-driven attack can get an early glimpse of the goal, then they may recover some lost prestige for Victorian Soccer. But it may not be as easy as I suggest.

However, it's Hellas for me — all the way.

Teams will be selected from—

JUVENTUS: Horvath, Di Bartolo, Baggio, Jennings, Rossetti, Crawford, Moriarty, West, Da Cruz, Corti, Cooper, Serafini, Chiappin, Govelli and Perrin.

S.M.-HELLAS: Tsitos, Kalegerous, Mantrakis, Maragiris, Papadopoulos, Roussis, Bedford, Pyrgolis, Kamboropolous, Ackerley, Mandalis, Damanaikos and Adam.

SOCER NEEDS THIS TEAM IN '66

By FRED VILLIERS

Tuesday, November 30, 1965, will be Victoria's most important day in Soccer this year.

It will be the Victorian Soccer Federation's annual meeting at the Olympia Room. It starts at 7 o'clock.

This will be the most crucial meeting since the Federation was formed in Melbourne three years ago.

It is no secret that most officials will be glad to see the end of the present season. Most will say "Good riddance to 1965."

What a pity it has turned out this way. Early this year we all looked forward to the 1965 kick-off and we silently prayed that a good Soccer year was in store for us.

But instead Soccer has suffered a severe setback and the game has returned to its pre-1960 level.

The game in Melbourne needs urgent attention from the administration point of view. It needs long-range planning and more honest attitudes.

Clubs must realise that they need men at the top who will do the best for Soccer and not necessarily the best for their own club.

The childish attitude "If I can't have my own way my club won't play" must stop, and I mean stop. It must be forced by intelligent and responsible people in charge of the game.

Any club which walks off the Soccer ground in Melbourne should walk off for life. There should be no replays like we saw in this year's farcical Dockerty Cup competition which under the idiotic round-robin set-up should never have been played.

All the dead wood on the Federation Council and executive should resign and make way for men who are prepared to work for the good of the game and nothing else.

We need men with keen interest to whip up

A TOURING team from Auckland which was captained by a 41-year-old former English International star Ken Armstrong failed to set the world on fire on a brief visit to Sydney.

Little more than 200 people saw the visitors.

The tour could not help to be a flop coming so late in the year but plans are under way for New Zealand's national team to make a full scale visit here next March.

Lance Robinson was quite right when he wrote in Sydney's Daily Telegraph that "Auckland seems to be suffering from the same malady eating into Sydney Soccer".

"A preponderance of former British players, too old and too slow to hold their places in the British teams, are sufficiently experienced to keep youthful native talent on the sidelines".

WILLIAMSTOWN'S

That in a nutshell
successful Altona Soc
John Cullen, publicity Officer for Altona, who have gained promotion
into the second division, this week told Soccer News how Altona made the grade in one season!

Here is his story:

I was publicity officer of Williamstown Soccer Club and the dispute I had with a Williamstown Council worker over the putting down of a concrete path in the middle of our ground at J. T. Grey reserve, Kororoit Creek Rd., made me realise that we had no future at Williamstown.

When I complained as an individual, not as a club official, I was informed if I didn't keep to my own affairs we would not get the ground next year. "After all, you are only a Soccer club," I was told.

As a resident of Altona
I knew that Altona council is progressive. On my own initiative, I approached Councillor Stan
McIntosh, and sounded him out on the possibility of getting a ground in Altona.

He was enthusiastic and advised that I get our secretary to write an official request. He would try and use what influence he could on our behalf.

Williamstown Soccer
Club had a general meeting and although some disagreed we wrote asking for a ground. The council sent us a letter saying we had the ground,
but to apply at the proper time in 1965.

We changed our name
to Altona Soccer Club.

the "homestead", for the purpose of holding a public meeting.

Jimmy went here, there and everywhere talking to people who might be interested in offering their services.

He got notices printed and on his own he dropped them in letter-boxes, put them up in shops and talked to local businessmen getting promises of financial help.

The weeks passed with Jimmy still working untiringly and when the night of the meeting arrived the hall was packed out.

Most of the people there were strangers to each other.

I addressed the meeting and outlined our idea that this should be a completely new club, with experienced men from the old Williamstown club, and new blood in the form of anyone prepared to give of their time and effort.

BREAKTHROUGH

As a result, when we called for nominations for the various positions in the club, every position was filled on the committee totally with non-playing men.

This was the breakthrough we had hoped for. It meant that the players could concentrate on PLAYING. The only exception to this ruling was myself.

I was appointed publicity officer, but I was allowed to make myself available for selection. I asked and was allowed to be able to attend the committee meeting as an observer only, as I wished to be able to criticise the committee should this be necessary in my opinion.

Elected that night were the president, vice-president, secretary, assistant secretary, treasurer, assistant treasurer, committee, coach, trainer and publicity officer. Also a council representative is on the committee. Cr. Stan McIntosh.

It was decided to train on Monday and Thursday nights at 5.30 pm! A week before training was officially to start more than 40 turned up.

On the opening night so many arrived it was decided to stagger the training program. Juniors were to train at 4 pm. and seniors at 5.30.

J. Threlfall dies — 51

Joe Threlfall, one of Junior Soccer's greatest workers, died in a Melbourne hospital on Sunday. He was 51.

Joe was secretary to the juniors with the V.A.S.F.A. from 1956 to '61.

He had also been a junior coach and was one of the first junior officials to receive an honorarium for his services to juniors.

Joe gave up Soccer because of ill health.

Gordon Culbard, Junior Federation chairman, said yesterday, "Joe was one of the greatest workers we've ever had in Junior Soccer. We've lost a good man."

The funeral took place at St. Mark's Church of England, Sunshine, on Tuesday and it was appropriate that the service should be held in the church by the local Soccer ground.

Joe lived with his wife and two sons at 3 Ferguson St., Albion.

son from early in February '63 to now, the turn up at training each night has been fantastic.

68 PLAYERS

One night I decided to count the players. Some of the juniors had left after finishing training, some seniors had not yet arrived, yet there were 68 players actually on the ground.

The teams which we formed were one senior, two senior reserve sides, one under 18 years, an under 16 years, two under 14's and one under 12.

The teams, too late to get in a league, we arranged friendly games for.

We did this recognising if a player trains he wants a game, even if it is only a friendly. We had friendlies every Sunday. Our ground is Kim Reserve, Millers Rd. All tona. There are two grounds.

The council built a two-room dressing shed, put on cold water and is going to include hot showers next year.

The grass is cut regularly. I make a point of complimenting the council in helping us.

During an election campaign my "Letter to the Editor" was the only one praising the council. The following week my headline in the local paper was "Altona swim to soccer victory" in which I mentioned the rain had caused two mud patches to form on the ground.

The next week the council worked for three days scooping the mud away and putting down fresh earth.

You must admit, not many councils would bother to do that for a Soccer club.

We started the season well, lost four league games and one Dockerty Cup game throughout the year. We drew two and won 16 league and three Dockerty Cup games. We finished our first year in second position to Frankston.

Our reserve side finished the year in second position, again to Frankston.

PROMOTED

We thus have been promoted in our first year in existence — something which few teams ever achieve.

Altona believes that the only way to really have a successful club is to encourage Australians to take an interest and in this we have succeeded.

Many of our supporters are Australian residents.

I think the space I have been allowed in the "Altona Star" has contributed to this. I have written my reports in such a way as to interest if possible people who are not Soccer minded.

As a result Australian people who live in Altona have a better idea of and interest in Soccer than the average Australian in most other suburbs.

A big percentage of the junior players in the club are Australian born.

Altona believes that by playing down the National interests in favour of a local interest, then anybody can come and watch or play with no outside feelings entering into it.

There is harmony in the club. We have a great many nationalities, but where a person was born, his religion, or Nationalism. Yet we have Australians, Scots, English, Irish (north and south), German, Maltese, Swiss, Polish, Italian and one or two others. These mix socially off the field as well as on the field.

BIG TEST

When Altona was in the "four" the test came. One of the last games of the year was against Ajax in second position.

Altona was in fourth position with equal points but a worse goal average. The team that won this match would most probably be promoted.

At one stage it was 1-1. Then we went wild. We piled on five goals to make it 6-1. Ajax scored 6-2. We missed a penalty — our fifth penalty in a row we had missed this year.

Ajax scored from a penalty 6-3. Then Altona scored to make it 7-3.

This vital win made us two points ahead of Ajax and we went on to win promotion. We won the final game against Waverley 4-0 to clinch it.

British soccer LAST WEEKEND

Chelsea 0, Leicester 2:

Chelsea looked like a side who have already had too much football.

They were rank bad — patternless, disjointed and inaccurate. And there was little in the play to indicate early improvement.

From the one of their best shots came from England leader Barry Bridges during a brief appearance as substitute.

Bridges, sidelined by manager Tom Docherty's decision to play Peter Osgood at centre forward came on when left back Eddie McCreadie was injured ten minutes from time.

McCreadie protested as trainer Harry Medhurst left him, but later he had to go to hospital for X-ray of a rib injury.

Clincher

Leicester greeted Bridges with a second match-clinching goal. Derek Dougan applying the finishing touch after Docherty's shot had been blocked.

Goal No. 1 came after fifty-six minutes of boring football, when a team with so many inaccurate passes it was not surprising a defender scored it.

Dave Gibson took a quick

Great

Banks uncertain early on — especially with his right crosses — also made a fantastic mid-air stop from a Bert Murray effort. Banks' reflexes were working 100 per cent and the ball was deflected en route.

These moments and the goals apart, this match was — especially in the first half — the worst First Division game I have endured all season.

The twenty-two players did little to earn their top bracket wages. Chelsea have now gone from the same position in and scored only two goals in that period. They could do with some of the old, familiar faces.

HALF-SPEED WEST HAM

Northampton 2, West Ham 1
WAKE up, West Ham! The talent is there, even with Johnny Byrne out of action—but the spirit seems gone.

Half-speed, apathetic, playing as though they were robed of time and again by an eager Northampton side, all out to end their first win in Division One.

True, West Ham can plead a curious penalty decision against them when their back Dennis Bonetti slipped into a Northampton's Bobby Hunt in the "box."

Not only did it not look a goal, but the ball was being played five yards away by Northampton's Ken Leek. The Foley scored the penalty.

Then followed another end, Northampton won the match when Ken Leek headed the ball past the post from Bobby Hunt's pass.

On the credit side, West Ham must thank young backs, Dennis Hurst, Jim Stanfield, Charles plus Bobby Moore and Ken Brown.

But the sort of these backs seem to passed on to their forward line. West Ham must also thank Jim Stanfield for clever clearance from Bobby Hunt.

Gibson, of Leicester, signposts direction of ball after beating Chelsea's McCreadie, but it was no goal.

4 QPR 2

LES ALLEN headed in Rangers' second goal in the seventy-ninth minute and turned what looked like a cosy win for the Welshmen into a close finish.

Up to that point, both sides had generally been held in check by wiry little Scottish half-back John McGuligan.

In fact, McGuligan started Swansesa on the road to victory by heading home a Swansea corner within a few minutes of the kick-off. And from that moment until the interval it was practically all Swansea, including a twenty-fifth-minute goal from Wales Under-23 winger Evans.

In the thirty-second minute, the energetic McGuligan, with help from Alan Ferguson and Todd added goal No. 3.

One now assumed that Swansea would go for their big goal of the season, but in the second half Rangers brought on substitute Keith Sanderson for the injured Tony Hazel. This move had a surprising effect on the Welshman.

They attacked with great gusto, and with Swansea back pedalling into their own goal, the visitors closed the gap.

In the sixty-eighth minute Collins was able to tap home a late header.

Even minutes later, full-back Brian Taylor lofted a mighty centre to the far post and the ball was headed home by Rangers' second goal.

Swansesa were now forced to change their tactics, and in the forty-second minute Jimmy McIlroy was put on to a lucky pass from wing half Williams and, spotting goalkeeping short, trotted away from his challenge lobbed home the final goal.

Newcastle 0, Spurs 0

A SLIP-UP by British international keeper Pat Jennings nearly cost Spurs a point.

He clawed at and missed a simple back pass by Eddie Clayton. Knowles had to scramble to the line, via the keeper's back.

That was the nearest United came to scoring in a game which was packed with incidents. The wingers aped the play of the nation and skills but so badly lacking in forwards with goal power.

Even Jimmy Greaves could not find his way to this match the only time it lacked a goal.

Only once — when he was on the break — did Al Gilezian did get a clear sight of goal. But his left foot shot was screwed well wide of the post in the 64th minute.

Spurs lived up to past reputation about the middle of the half. Alf Mulberry, Dave Mackay, Laura Potts and Greaves struck the ball about leisurely and confidently.

But the power one normally associates with Tottenham — that killer touch — was never evident. On this performance it was a £400,000 team enjoyable a watch on their route to nowhere.

In the seconds from the final whistle, United were given a dream chance of snatching both points. Mackay, Laura Potts and Greaves struck the ball about leisurely and confidently.

But the power one normally associates with Tottenham — that killer touch — was never evident. On this performance it was a £400,000 team enjoyable a watch on their route to nowhere.

He cut inside Mulberry, but his final shot could have been blown away by Jennings, who had no trouble collecting.

Arsenal 2, Blackburn 2 :

If perhaps the Bryan Douglas craft had been available for Blackburn, Arsenal could have lost a match they never got the hang of.

Manchester Utd 4 : Fulham 1

David Herd signaled his return to the First Division scene with a goal and a assist against luckless Fulham. But this wasn't a one-horse race.

Two goals in the last three minutes makes the scoreline something of a travesty. Fulham were good and fluent in their work, despite the fact that John Clempson looked like a wild animal in his natural centre half strutting to make the grade at centre forward.

The Londoners suffered the pains of outrageous fortune before the interval.

John Marsh had the ball in the net but it was ruled off-side.

He thought as did I, that the ball had crossed the line when it dropped down from the bar.

Blackburn deserved the lead with one covering at a George Armstrong cross.

It was a free kick by Ronnie Clayton was headed on by Eddie Clayton and hit the bar by left-winger Mike Harrison, and was finally headed home by his own net by David Court.

He thought as did I, that the ball had crossed the line when it dropped down from the bar.

Blackburn deserved the lead with one covering at a George Armstrong cross.

It was a free kick in the 23rd minute with a studied low drive from George Best's cross. The second half was only 10 minutes old when Fulham hit back — Dempsey diving forward to head in Best's cross.

United scored the third in the 60th minute when I heard the ball hit home after Tony Macero had brilliantly parried a Pat Crerand blockbuster.

Charlton added the fourth in a blistering 18-yard drive and Herd completed his personal triumph by dishing home a Best offering in the dying seconds.
